DISABILITY

This policy has adopted the social model of disability. The social model views disability as something that arises from the disadvantages people experience because of their particular differences and characteristics. The social model of disability aims to remove the barriers in the social and physical domains that prevent people with disabilities from participating and contributing to community life.

The policy has adopted the following definition of disability:

A person with a disability is a person with a physical, intellectual, sensory, or age-related disability or mental illness (or combination of these) who faces barriers in the social and physical environment that prevent them from fully participating and contributing to community life.

A disability may be related to age, previous injury or illness, associated with physical, sensory or intellectual disability or mental illness that people were born with or acquired.

- Physical disability: Reduced physical capacity which for example affects mobility.
- Sensory: Impairment of the senses (mostly commonly sight and hearing).
- Mental Illness: A mental health condition arising from continuous or intermittent disorders related to thinking, feeling, volition or behaviour.
- Intellectual disability: Permanently impaired learning ability (usually from birth) which prevents or inhibits people from developing the range of physical and social skills usually found in a person of that age.
- Age-related Disability: Physical, sensory, intellectual, disability or mental illness related to the onset of old age. This includes conditions which can affect younger people, such as Alzheimer's disease or stroke, but which are more often found amongst older people.

- Access - People who experience disabilities have equal rights to access the physical environment, information, communication and services.
- Diversity - People who experience disabilities have a freedom and a right to define themselves. The diversity of people who experience disability, including their ethnicity, needs to be recognised, and there should be flexibility to meet their differing aspirations and goals.
- Equity - People with disabilities should have equitable opportunities to access services, regardless of gender, ethnicity, type of disability and when the disability was acquired.
- Inclusion - All people, including those with disabilities, have the right to participate in an inclusive community where they are able to make the most of their lives.
- Treaty of Waitangi - MSTTT will work with Maori to ensure they are able to participate at all levels of decision-making around disability issues relating to the provision of services to their people.
- Human Rights – MSTTT acknowledges and abides by the terms of the Human Rights Act 1993, which prohibits 'unreasonable' discrimination on the grounds of disability (amongst other factors).

CORE ELEMENTS

The Policy has five core elements' that together reflect MSTTT's commitment to assuring that our information and services are accessible by people with disabilities and that their workplaces are free of any discrimination of people with disabilities.

1. Communication Access

MSTTT recognises that there must be particular recognition of the information needs of those who cannot use standard means of communication. This includes people who have sensory disabilities of hearing and/or vision, who have communication disabilities and who use facilitative communication, as well as those who need help in using the information provided. Information must be available in a form appropriate to peoples' needs.

Communication with people with disabilities should enable and encourage full access to MSTTT information and services.

MSTTT will endeavour to:

1.1 Ensure peer-workers, trustees and advisors are aware of the need to provide information in various ways to meet different needs.

1.2 Ensure information is available in alternative formats that are easier for the wider disability community to access. For example – audio tape, website, teletext, Braille, message services, large print, simple language and diagrams, radio, and email.

1.3 Provide information about services in a variety of media. For example – publicise telephone and fax numbers, provide print information and radio notices.
